Every year the Hoover Watercolor Society Traveling Exhibit is made up of canvases with such varied subject matter that there is something for people of all ages and art preferences to enjoy. That is one of the reasons it is always one of the favorites here at the Michelson Museum of Art. Another reason the exhibit is popular is that many of the artists are on hand to enjoy the reception, visit with the guests and talk about their work.

Membership in the Hoover Watercolor Society, organized on September 11, 1958, is open to all artists (and non-artists) over eighteen years of age who are seriously interested in watercolor painting.

Don't miss the chance to see these outstanding pieces of work. Everyone is invited to the opening reception where many of the artists from the Hoover Watercolor Society will be on hand.
